CHEATHAM at Brent- ers in arrears will please pay the route wood, in striking distance from him. We give these items for what they are worth. They are entirely from secesh sources, and may or may not be true. We think, however, it is probably true that John-STON is to receive reinforcements from TREATRE.—The success of the dignified efforts of all who have a part to perform, the praiseworthy discrimination Garrison shown in the pleasing variety of the programmes, as well as crowded houses nightly, testify to the efficiency of our talented company, who render each night's performance a dramatic feats well worthy witnessing.

The theatre is a necessity that we cannot dispense with, a resort where the soldier can substitute sweet music and pleasant emotions, for a short time, for the clashing of the sabre and the discharge of fire-arras.

Some of the unworthy visitors keep up such an uproar, that at times we cannot Oorder, No. 25, Department of the Cumtell whether " kichard" or the "Last Rose of Summer" is being played. Silence in the ranks!

A good bill is offered for to-night.

Grape-vine lies were circulating in the rebel camps day before yesterday, to the effect that Price had gained a great victory over GRANT. A telegram from General GRANT received at Headquarters, Department of the Cumberland, at 11:30 o'clock, night before last, indicated that everything was quiet in Mississippi to date-excepting that the rebels were skedadling Southward in some haste.

ALEX. H. IRWIN, aged 32 years, was killed at the battle of Perryville, Ky. Mr. I. was well known in our city, particularly among our river men, and was always regarded as a good and brave man His many friends will regret to hear of his death.

MILITARY EXECUTION AT THE OLD CAP-TTAL PRISON.—A few minutes before noon on Friday, Private Conrad Kessler, of company K, 103d New York volunteers, was executed in the yard of the old Capital Prison at Washington, for the murder of First Lieutenant Fernando Linzey, company K. 103d New York volunteers. Kessler was convicted of murder by a late court martial. He had been engaged in a scuffle with some comrades, and during it got possession of a gun. Lt. Linzey inerfered to stop the disturbance, threatening Kessler with a courtmartial, and he thereupon made a lunge at Lieutenant L. with his bayonet, killing him.

The Rumored Plan to Assassinate Napoleon.

All the Ministers left Paris on Saturday evening en masse for (Complegne. As they did so very unexpectedly, this cirumstance had the effect of strengthening a current report that the Emperor was fired at the same evening by a soldier of his body guard. All Paris is this spiracy to which I alluded in my last letter, as the cause of the inauguration of the Boulevard du Prince Eugene being put off. I did not like to give a circumstantial account of what I had there heard, passing from mouth to mouth, on the subject, feeling that it was tor. serious to treat as a more on dit. But as there is now, for a wonder, some reason to think that there is a basis of truth for this report, I do not feel the same hesitation about going into some details when speaking of it. The story goes that fifteen men, armed with pistols, who are been posted along the Boulevard du Prince Eugene, when the Emperor was to be passing. If one failed in carrying out his object, the second was to have made an attempt to accomplish it; and if the second failed; the third was to have taken his place, and so till one of the fifteen had succeeded. I have also heard, but I do not know whether it is the truth or not, that all the conspirators have escaped, and that the government are in a state of great alarm. As for the Parisians, they are, from the Arch of Triumph to the Barriere du Trone, and from Mont Martre to the Barriere du Maine, calling to mind the clairvoyante's prediction that a terrible catastrophe is to occur about the end of the decade which commenced with the destruction of the Republic. I know several persons whom all this talk has so alarmed, that they will not go to see the pageant which is to come off on the 7th of December, lest they should meet with a stray projectile. Several ladies, I am told, also refused to order court dresses till after the first week of December shall be tided over by the Government in safety, so as not to have their wardrobes filled with useless finery in case any public catastrophe should meanwhile take place. The feeling which prevails here can only be compared to the panic which some years ago took place in different parts of the United Kingdom, in consequence of some sensation preachers having announced that according to their calculations of the prophecies the world would be destroyed on a certain day. The Emperor, it is believed by many of his subjects, is also influenced by the same fears as to what the end of the decade may have in store for him. The Emperthe pass prescribed in such order, will or has also, by always professing to be-

We hear of their offering very extravagant waegs, without being able to procure the requisite aid. The fact is, there are not laborers enough in the State, by ready grown from destruction, to say nothing of preparation for future operations. Most of the volunteers from this State under the last two calls were from the farming population, and, as a general thing, they were the most industrious, enterprising and reliable laborers which the country afforded Many neighborheods were entirely deprived of ablobodied young men; and only the lame and the lazy, and those who were already overburthened with engagements, were left behind. This difficulty will be more seriously felt hereafter. The present price of labor exceeds the value of the produce which it will raise, even if land were rent free. Hence there must result diminished agricultural production, increased prices and diminished exportation. To this evil, now merely or mainly personal to the farmer, but, prospectively general and national, we would call timely public attention. The continuance of the war renders an increased supply of agricultural laborers an imperious public necessity. How shall that necessity be met? He who can solve this question will confer upon his country a very great beuefit. Let the wise give it their attention.

SHELLS THAT WON'T EXPLODE. - Washington, Dec. 5 .- There is a curious report here to-day to the effect that Burnside's late visit to Washington was not so much connected with the movements of the army or the plan of the campaign as with a curious deficiency he discovcred in the department of Gen. Meigs.

It is said that some ten thousand shells were lately forwarded to Falmouth, to be in readiness for the expected bombardment. They were good-looking destructives enough but Burnside never trusts to looks alone: he peers about and examines; and when he came to put his nose in these shells he found that not one in ten was likely to explode. As he is one of the warriors who mean to hurt the enemy, he straightway hied him to Washington to learn the reason of this systematic deficiency.

Whether he found out does not yet appear, but it is pretty well know that one or two gentlemen, high in office, whose business is to forward shells that will hurt
